

James B. Jones

Writer, Editor, and Narrative Designer
Web Portfolio Sample

Blizz

Interests: Weapons, Technology

Homeworld: Tatooine

Real Name: Unknown

A mechanical genius with an infinite curiosity about the universe around him, Blizz is one of only a small number of Jawas to ever explore beyond his homeworld of Tatooine. From a young age Blizz would feed his curiosity by tinkering with the random scrap that would be salvaged by his clan. As his knowledge of technology grew, so did his ingenuity, and soon Blizz was able to fix almost anything.

As he grew older, Blizz started to bore of toying with the limited selection of outdated scrap that he would come across and longed for something new. One day a traveling salvager came to his clan, looking for “junk rats” that could be sent into dangerous areas to hunt for valuable tech or other salvageable items. When Blizz heard about this opportunity to see the galaxy beyond the endless sand dunes of his home, he jumped at the opportunity.

Blizz spent the next several years working for the salvager, exploring countless worlds and having the opportunity to play with new technologies that he had never seen while on Tatooine. Always out to please those around him, Blizz is only too eager to rush into almost any situation that will allow him the chance to tinker with new tech.